1. I.O. #20 ended on 25 April. There were twelve failures out of a class of 67. The grade level and educational background of the group were also below the usual average for the course.

2. [] of the A&E Staff is completing a study of the characteristics of the I.O. student body for the last ten courses, which should give us definite information on the relationship between such factors as age, education, length of service and performance in the course.

3. [] has completed the draft schedule for I.O. #21, which begins 19 May. Because of the Memorial Day holiday which cuts the length of the course by one day, a few Support lectures have been omitted. The two exhibits will be cut in length and will both be shown on the same day, Wednesday, 28 May, to allow for additional class time.
